TREMAYNE MANORIAL + PROPERTY HOLDINGS

Manor of North Huish was sold by Arthur Tremayne to Eales and Luxmoor, it was afterwards purchased by Richard Eales of Favellscombe who built upon it. In 1822 it was the property of Thomas King.

Manor and advowson of Coryton, Devon was from a remote period the property of a family so called which removed to Cornwall. About 1608 John Coryton sold them to Sir Thomas Wise, they passed with the heiress to Tremayne and belonged 1822 to William Newman.

Manor of Thrusselton belonged temp E1 (1272-1307) to Vipont after to Pomeroy and then to Trenchard whose heiress married Tremaine. Cannabarne and Wrey.... in the parish belonged to Trenchard and Tremayne who had the great tithes and patronage of the vicarage.

Collacombe in Lamerton came from Else to Trenchard 1295 and passed to Tremaine with the great tithes and patronage of the vicarage, the land was sold to Eales, the church property remained in Tremayne 1822.

Manor of Maristow belonged to Hampton and passed to Trenchard, thence to Tremaine.

Manor of Raddon Alterford in the same parish was part of the Sydenham property, which passed from a family of that name to Marrais, temp H4 (1399-1413) it passed to Wise whose heiress married Tremaine in the 17th century. The patronage of the vicarage which is endowed with part of the great tithes was in Tremayne 1822.

Rashleigh in Wemworthy, the original place of that family came by an heiress of the elder branch to Clotworthy and passed again by marriage to Tremaine of Heligan.

Manor of Trelevan in Mevagissey belonged for many generations to Trewolla. It was sold in 1667 to Vincent of Treeve. In the last century it was mortgaged to J. Knight of Gosfield, Essex whose widow carried it to the Marquis of Buckingham. The barton was inhabited by Crowne and Stevens as lessees to Trewolla. Tonkin the antiquary also lived there and would have inherited it from Vincent if the mortgage could have been redeemed. Trelevan was purchased by Tremayne from the Duke of Buckingham.

Manor of Pentuan in Mevagissey was the seat of the Pentires where they removed from Pentire in Endellion. The heiress married Roscarrock from whom it passed again to Dart by marriage. Lord Robartes purchased it and it was again sold to Sir James Larocke. In 1792 it was purchased by Rev H. H. Tremayne who had inherited the barton from the heiress of Dart.

The Barton of Trewinney formerly belonging to Spry is now in Tremayne.

Trewoone in St Mewan belonged to Kelly, one moiety is now in Hawkins and the other is shared by Tremayne and Hoblyn derived from coheiresses of Pye. The advowson of the rectory is shared in the same manner.

Manor of Penans Austell belonged temp E3 (1327-1377) to Hiwis whose heiress carried the Cornish estates of that family to Copeshill, this manor was after in the name of Chywarton. 1634 it was the joint property of Arundell and Trewren. Arundells moiety was purchased by Henry Hawkins 1724 and his heiress brought it to Tremayne; the other moiety belonged 1640 to Oliver Sawle and was long in that family, it is now in Tremayne except one field still the joint property of Tremayne and Sawle.

Manor of Lanestock in Tywardreth and St Blazey formerly belonging to Arundel of Trefice by inheritance from Durant, passed to Sawle and Tremayne by the same title as the above.

Manor of Trevorder in Egloshayle belonged to Roscarrock and was one of the last estates they held in the County, it has ceased to exist as a manor.

The Barton of Lower Trevorder their supposed seat came by Hearle to Tremayne. Crone or Crowan in that parish belonged to Roscarrock and was sold to Hill and after to Hoblyn whose heiress Mrs Damaris Kirkham left it to the Rev H.H. Tremayne together with Tregleah which had been acquired from Kekewich.

Manor of Lansladron belonged in Domesday book to Reginald de Valletort under the Earl of Cornwall, afterwards to Serle de Lansladron temp E1.(1272-1307) His daughter married Govily whose heiress married Trefice and on the failure of Serle's male line the estate passed to Arundel. The manor with that of Tregone has been sold in The barton belongs to Tremayne.

Manor of Heligan belonged to a family so called and passed through successive heiresses to Tregarthian and Whitleigh whose coheiresses married Grenville and Hals. Sampson Tremayne purchased it in moieties temp Elizabeth.

Tregonan in St Ewe once a seat of Beaumont, after of Tredenham and Scobell from whom it is now jointly by Tremayne and Hext.

Kistell Wartha and Wollas formerly residences of Tremayne are still in the family.

Bosew belongs also to Tremayne, it was held by Crosse from Arundel.

The Barton of Nancallan in Gorran belonged to Roscarrock and passed by sale successively to Hill, Denham, Hancock and Tremayne

COLLACOMBE DEVON BRANCH

Thomas Tremaine and his wife obtained leave in 1448 from Edmund Lacy, Bishop of Exeter to have divine service celebrated in their presence within their Manor of Collacombe.

John Tremaine petitioned the Prince 29.E3 (1356) to have the manor of Godrevy restored to him and Thomas Carminow, it having been seized during a minority by the Duchy steward, the petition was granted. Another inquisition is recorded as taken 30.E3 (1357) at the suit of John Tremaine or Tremeane, and in 15.R2 (1392) he was witness to a deed concerning the manor of Allet. He was Sheriff temp H4 (1399-1413) and in that Kings 3rd year a commissioner for raising ... aid on the marriage of the Lady Blanch. A note of charges in the ... Forth of his patent was existing in the hands of his descendant in 1665. He is termed John Tremaine Senior to distinguish him from John son of his brother Thomas. This Thomas by marriage with Trenchard of Collacomb brought much land into the family and removed it to Devon.

Sir John Damarel the second husband of Isabella Trenchard was so attached to her that he left North Huish and Whitchurch with both advowsons to her son Nicholas Tremaine, making her executrix to his Will, which deed with her own Will was to be seen at Collacomb in 1767.

This Nicholas who lived in the time of R2 (1377-1399) and three following reigns founded a hospital in Tavistock dedicated to St George, and in 1.H4 (1400) when he succeeded to his mother Dame Isabel Damarel in the manor of Whitchurch he manumitted John Hurt one of her tenants.

His son Thomas was one of the chief men of Devon who 12.H5 (1425) made oath for themselves and their retainers to observe the existing laws. His wife Elizabeth Carew is said to have possessed "a swinging fortune for those days" viz 100 merks, and in return was allowed £5 6s a very large sum for the period. They erected painted windows in the churches of Sydenham Damarell, and Kelly.

Their son John was the last who bore the arms of Erney /Ermy as his paternal coat. His wife was probably of the Warre's of Somerset as her arms were like theirs, Gules 2 wings azure, in chief a bend azure charged with a crescent or. The Cornish property (Carwythenack Manor Constantine) was given to their son John 9.H7 (1494) but he died not to live to inherit that in Devon.

His son Thomas is said by Leland to be a man of fair lands. His second son Edmund by his inviolable fidelity on the rack saved the Princess Elizabeth and Lord Courtney from Mary's anger and was rewarded after her death with the post of Clerk to the Council, he had previously been Secretary to Sir Henry Sidney in Ireland. The city of Exeter gave him in 1574 a pension of 40 shillings for good offices received and expected; he was M.P. for Plymouth and succeeded to the estate on failure of heirs to his eldest brother, as Digory the 3rd son did at his death.

The 4th son Richard fled into Germany to avoid the Marian persecution, and was recompensed in Elizabeth's days with ample preferment, he was the first Vicar of Menheniot after the Reformation and a celebrated preacher. He gave to Exeter College Oxford the King of Spain's bible printed at Antwerp in 8 vols.folio. Nicholas and Andrew sixth and seventh sons were the celebrated twins whose personal likeness and wondrous mental sympathy excited so much interest among their contemporaries. They perished as they lived together at Havre de Grace in 1564, where one being slain the other stepped into his place and met a like fate. Roger the eldest son of this large family had as early as 1550 a grant of all his father's lands in Cornwall. Digory's only son Arthur, was on his father's death the only male descendant of Thomas and Phillipa, a remarkable circumstance in a family of eight sons.

Arthur b1553 married Mary daughter of Sir Richard Grenville of Stowe 2 June 1586 at Kilhampton.

Edmund 1st son b 1587 married Bridget daughter of Sir John Cooper.

Edmund's son Arthur b1627 commanded a regiment for the King and was severely handled for his loyalty, suffering plunder sequestration and imprisonment. He paid a large sum also which he borrowed for the use of Queen Henrietta Maria when she lay in at Exeter, for which he was never compensated.

His son Edmund b1649 greatly increased the wealth of the family by his marriage with Arabella Wise and removed to Sydenham. Collacombe is mentioned as a house in ruins at the time of Arthur Tremayne the father of the last of this branch.

NOTES ON THE SECOND BRANCH AT HELIGAN.

Richard Tremaine the 2nd son of John by Jane Warre was the oldest male in the family at the Visitation temp H8 (1509-1547) and is supposed to have given in the pedigree. His nephew Thomas of Collacomb is named in his Will 1554. He died at Tetburne St Mary but was stiled of Upcott, his younger son Sampson was his executor. His eldest Oliver died before him leaving his son William in Ward to his cousin Thomas of Collacomb, the said Thomas and his son Roger made over the Wardship of the boy to his grandfather Richard on payment of £24.

John the 4th son of Richard was the first who had Tregonan, where he resided and which he left to his brother Henry's son Richard of whom Carew speaks so warmly, it was this Richard who entered the pedigree in the Visitation of 1573, and leaving only a daughter bequeathed Tregonan to his cousin Sampson second son of Oliver who then resided at Dorchester and being too old to move sent his son Oliver to live there. This Oliver died 1649 and was buried by night as a recusant as was his daughter Mary. He is said to have married in 1635 a second wife called Jenefer Coffyn name of the first is not mentioned, his son John sold Tregonan, and leaving but one son who died unmarried in London that branch became extinct. The record does not detail the extinction of the next branch represented by Richard Tremaine of Gwennap but it must have occurred because the descendants of Sampson Tremaine of Heligan came to be considered as next of kin to Collacomb. This Sampson lived at his wife's house at Tredowne till the death of his father and then moved to Trelissick where he died 1593 bequeathing 3s 4d to the poor of St Ewe, his father had left one shilling to every parish in which he had land. His son William obtained a large fortune with his wife amounting in land and otherwise, her sisters and coheireses married Hoblyn and Bone they were daughters of John Pye. This William began to build at Heligan in 1597 and removed there in 1604. Bone and his wife released their third of Trewoone to Tremaine and Hoblyn.

William Tremaine left 13s 4d to the poor of St Ewe and 6s 4d to the poor of Broadwood + Widger, (quire was it not 6/8?).

His two eldest sons died before him and the 3rd Oliver only held the estates for sixteen months and his next brother Thomas though living at his father's death must have died during that period for John the 5th son succeeded, he added to the buildings at Heligan and suffered much both for his own loyalty, and by way of reprisal for the acts of his son Lewis, his wife Jane was buried by night, probably as a recusant.

Their eldest son the above named Lewis was a most zealous Cavalier who maintained Pendennis against the Parliamentarians having occupied it with his own regiment.

On the surrender of the castle he had a safe conduct from Richard Fortescue commanding under Sir Thomas Fairfax and from Vice Admiral William Batten to go to his house at St Ewe, which refutes the extraordinary tradition of his having escaped by swimming from Pendennis to St Mawes. After many sufferings, flight imprisonment and money losses, he resided with his wife at Tamerton for six years, always ready to take journeys at the hazard of his life for the Kings service, and keeping arms and ammunition prepared for any opportunity. He had many severe wounds but lived to see the Restoration though still persecuted by his enemies.

A certificate of his great services was signed 1661 by Bath, Wrey, Godolphin, Vivian, Courtney, Arundel, Smith and Roscarrock.

He was much employed by Charles 2nd in Cornwall; was Lt Governor of St Mawes & ccc.

He succeeded 1681 to the Dart estate and much augmented Heligan. He gave to St Ewe £3 10s, to St Mawes £2 10s to Mevagissey £1 10s and to St Gorran and St Mewan each £1 5s.

Also by deed 40s pr an to St Ewe and St Mawes besides other gifts. His wife was also very liberal to the poor. Colonel Tremayne's eldest son John was Knighted 1689 and leaving no issue entailed the estate on his brother Charles and failing his issue on his cousin Arthur of Collacomb and his son.

The next brother to Sir John, Lewis was alive at the time of their father's death but never returned from sea.

The widow of Charles Tremaine remarried to his successor in the vicarage of St Austell; she left 50s to the poor of that parish and the same sum to St Erme her native place.

Lewis son of Charles was named Sheriff in 1712 and 1719 but got himself excused. He left by Will to the poor of St Ewe £10, St Austell £5, Mevagissey and St Mewan £2, Gorran £3 and St Just £2, Wemworthy £5, Winkley £4, South Molton and Witheridge £3 and Barnstaple £2, and entailed his estates failing his sons issue on his kinsman Arthur Tremayne of Collacomb.

His son John inherited from his mother a moiety of the Clotworthy estate and obtained the other moiety on the death of Margaret Giffard who was daughter of his Aunt the other coheiress of Clotworthy, he thus became the representative of the blood and wealth of that ancient family.

His wife Grace Hawkins brought the Manor of Lanestock and a fair estate in Mevagissey and elsewhere. She left some of her lands to her 3rd son Henry and 4 guineas to be distributed among 70 poor widows in St Austell and three guineas to twenty six widows of St Ewe.

The sponsors of her eldest son Lewis were Francis Scobell of Tregonan, Dr John Hawkins of Penans, Barbara Hawkins widow and Mary widow of John Courtney.

Those of her daughter Mary were Philip Hawkins of Trewithen, Francis Scobell Junr of Tregonan, Rachel Hawkins widow and Barbara Hoblyn widow.

Those of her second son Lewis were Arthur Tremayne of Sydenham, J. Pendarves Basset of Tehidy, Grace wife of Sir Francis Vivian of Trelowarren and Elizabeth Carlyon of Tregrehan.

The proxies who stood for the godfather were Francis Scobell Junr and William Archer of Trelewack.

This second Lewis died after a short illness at the age of 27 he left 300 guineas to St Ewe, 150 to Wemworthy and 50 to St Mewan to be employed in beautifying the respective churches. (quire, how much of this "beautifying" consisted in defacing the beauties of former ages of better taste?) T.S.G.

The third son Henry had for sponsors, William Archer of Trelewack, John Fortescue of Penwarne, Barbara Hawkins widow his grandmother and Gertrude wife of Thomas Hext his Aunt . He was ordained in 1766 a few months before the unexpected death of this brother put him in possession of the family property which he increased by marriage with Harriet coheiress of John Hearle of Penryn, this lady who was left early without parents was bred under the care of Mrs Boscawen wife of the Admiral and proved a woman of very superior understanding. She died after a lingering illness of five years universally loved and respected. Her husband closed a long life of active usefulness and the most extended benevolence at the age of 87.

The sponsors of his infant sister Barbara were J.D. Birkhead of Euny, Francis Carthew vicar of Manaccan, Agnes Sawle widow of Penrice, and Elizabeth Hawkins of Helstone.

Those of his youngest sister Grace who married Charles Rashleigh were Revd John Pomeroy of Trelissick, Revd Edward Carthew Rector of St Mewan, Barbara Hawkins widow whose proxy was her daughter Mrs Hext, and Elizabeth Jones widow.

The above notes were taken from the hand written Gregor volumes G1948 of the pedigree of the Tremayne family of Heligan kept at the Cornwall Record Office, Truro, Cornwall.

27 May 1563 Warwick (Governor of New-Haven) to Cecil
Yesterday the Rhinegrave came down the hill with his main force to visit them, having two days before sent to Captain Hemerye from Honfleur with his company on that side the water, for the better maintaining of his enterprise, which he supposes was partly to show bravery, and partly that he might view their new works in the ditches. They were so well answered that they lost in the field two captains of ruiters, one enseignbearer, and about 150 soldiers. And at the encounter they lost Captain Tremayn, who was slain with a pistolet in the left side of his head, by a "chain shot, which the ruiters commonly use". The conflict ended in three hours with the loss of twenty of their soldiers. Their men did as well as any could do. Captain Horsey with his band pushed with the pike against their horsemen, and hurt and overthrew divers of them and their horses. – Newhaven, May 1563. Signed.

The Charge of the Light Brigade

The 13th at Balaclava.

Today has seen some astonishing feats of arms by the British Army. It started with the sudden appearance of a strong force of Russian infantry, cavalry and guns intending to drive the British from their base at Balaclava while the main allied force was engaged in the siege of Sevastopol some six miles away.

The first honours of the day went to the 93rd Highlanders under Sir Colin Campbell. Standing firm in a thin red line, they destroyed a Russian cavalry charge with disciplined rifle fire. Then it was the turn of Brigadier-General Scarlett and his Heavy Brigade. The Scots Greys and the Enniskillens, followed by the Royal Irish, the Dragoon Guards and the Royal Dragoons, hurled themselves, sabres slashing, at 3,000 Russian cavalry to drive them from the field. There followed a most extraordinary event.

Lord Raglan sent orders to Lord Lucan, the divisional commander, to prevent the Russians from carrying off some captured guns. The orders were not clear, and Lucan mistakenly ordered Lord Cardigan, commanding the Light Brigade, to attack well-defended Russian guns at the end of a long valley.

The Light Brigade set off as if it were in review, riding into a maelstrom of shot and shell fired at it from all sides. It reached the guns, sabred the gunners and then fought its way out. Of the 673 men who took part in this murderous encounter only 426 returned unhurt. General Boisquet watched in awe and said "C'est magnifique, mais ce n'est pas la guerre.

[Magnificent, but not war]

Of the officers of the 13th the following were present at Balaclava

- A Troop Captain Oldham and Cornet Montgomery
- B Troop Captain Jenyns and Lieutenant Jervis
- D Troop Captain Goad and (for a time) Cornet Goad
- E Troop Captain Arthur Tremayne, Lieutenant Percy Smith, and Cornet Chamberlayne.

The officers with the depot troops in England were Captains Holden and the Hon. John Hely-Hutchinson, Lieutenants Clayton and Davis; and Cornets Dearden and Fielden.

Colonel Arthur Tremayne in his Crimea notes writes:-

"Nolan gave his message a few yards in front of where I was standing, talking to poor old Goad. We were dismounted. There can be no doubt that Nolan gave the order to go where we did go. Cardigan told me repeatedly afterwards. But I have no doubt Lord Raglan meant us to go along the southern valley and wheel to the left, to prevent the guns being taken out of the Turks redouts"

He also writes:-

The men behaved splendidly, the last thing I heard before I went down (his horse was shot) was one man saying to his neighbour, "come on don't let those [the 17th Lancers] get ahead of us". Neither did they. Nolan was struck by a shot from the battery on our left, immediately we began to advance. This battery was driven off by some Chasseurs D'Afrique.

Colonel Tremayne pays a high tribute to the soldierly qualities of Lieutenant Percy Smith, who he says "gave us all an example of steadiness"

The honour of the Victoria Cross came to the 13th Light Dragoons, being awarded to Lance- Sergeant Joseph Malone of the E Troop, commanded by Capt Tremayne.

Miss Tremayne's Wedding

Presentation at Carclew

Carclew, the beautiful home of Colonel A. Tremayne, J.P., C.C., was on Thursday afternoon the scene of an interesting and pleasing little function. As all Cornwall knows, the gallant Colonel's daughter, Miss Opre Tremayne, is to be married to Mr Norman Maclagan on Tuesday week, and in anticipation of that happy event the estate tenantry made a presentation to the bride-elect. The gift consisted of a handsome silver bowl, weighing over 120 ounces, of Queen Anne pattern, and mounted on an ebony plinth. The ceremony was organised by a committee of which Mr J.T. Paull of Ruan Laniorne, was chairman, and Mr M.H. Holman, of Restrouguet, the hon. Sec.,.....

The following inscription was engraved on the front:

“ Presented to Miss Opre Tremayne by the tenantry of the Carclew estate, on the occasion of her marriage, 12th June 1900”

Those present at the ceremony included Colonel and Mrs Tremayne, Mr Arthur and Miss Opre Tremayne, Mrs Smythe, Mr R Painter (steward) and the members of the committee.-

In making the presentation Mr Menhenick sincerely hoped that Miss Tremayne and her future husband would have a bright happy and prosperous life-(applause).....

Miss Tremayne, in thanking the tenants for the present said she would value it all her life, more especially as it was also an expression of respect and love for her father and mother-(applause)

Colonel Tremayne said they were very grateful for the tenant's great kindness. The bowl was good enough for the daughter of the Prince of Wales, but he was glad the Royal personage had not got it-(laughter).He did not think his daughter was going to lead an idle and useless life. Those in that immediate neighbourhood who knew her and came in contact with her were aware that she was very unselfish (hearhear) and tried always to do what she could for the good of those about her.....

He wished that his two boys now in Africa were among them. Please God, the time would come when they would return, and those present would learn to know then. He thought when that knowledge had been gained they would not fail to brace his sons the same feeling they had been kind enough to express on this occasion (applause)
